ABOUT Saltaire

Saltaire takes its name from its founder, Sir Titus Salt, and the River Aire, which runs through the village.

Thanks to its preservation as a model village, Saltaire was designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2001.

Visit for spectacular architecture, independent shops and restaurants. There is world class art on display at Salts Mill with one of the largest collections of David Hockney art and all surrounded by countryside and moors. Events contribute to a thriving arts scene, including Saltaire Arts Trail, Festival and Living Advent Calendar.

01

Our tour begins on the bridge over the railway line. Look down Victoria Road towards the countryside beyond the village. Salt's most influential idea was to relocate his entire business to a greenfield site in order to escape the chaos of Bradford.

02

Bradford was a crowded and unhealthy place to live with limited space for a factory on the scale Salt envisaged. Continue downhill along Victoria Road, passing the impressive 2 Saltaire United Reformed Church on the left until you reach the canal bridge. Despite its rural location Saltaire was not isolated. Salt wanted to distribute his products quickly and cheaply so he chose a site with excellent transport links. The Mill was built beside the railway, the motorway of the nineteenth century. The canal linked the village to Leeds and Liverpool and there were good local road connections.

Turn left down the ramp and follow the path around to the right to cross the River Aire by the modern footbridge. Salt believed leisure was good for his workers' health, particularly as a distraction from the temptations of alcohol.

Roberts Park was included in Salt's plans from an early stage and it was completed in 1871. Retrace your steps back to the Railway Bridge and look towards the mill chimney.

Can you feel a breeze behind you? Salt was concerned about the harmful effects of smoke produced by factories and located his mill where the prevailing westerly winds would blow the smoke away from the village.

The Mill is clearly separated from the housing by the allotments where workers could grow their own food. This zoning approach was copied at other company towns and is echoed today by concentrating noisy and dirty businesses in industrial estates.

Turn around and walk down the cobbled Albert Terrace. Then turn left into William Henry Street. The three storey houses originally provided shared lodgings for single workers. Small front gardens and more spacious houses were provided for the 'overlookers', the foremen of the factory floor.

Turn right onto Caroline Street. Here the front doors of the properties open straight onto the street indicating that they were for lower paid employees. As you walk along you will see the streets branch off at regular intervals.

This grid pattern was chosen to use the available land efficiently. Although the houses are close together, architects Lockwood and Mawson ensured that their height in relation to the width of the road allowed each house to receive ample daylight.

Continue to the junction with Albert Road. Here turn left uphill. First you will pass a row of 'overlookers' houses before finding the grandest semidetached residences, home to the company's executives, teachers and the church minister. Originally, they had fine views over open country. At the top of Albert Road, turn left and use the zebra crossing to cross Saltaire Road.

Continue straight ahead and then walk left around the corner to reach Bingley Road. Continue along Bingley Road and then turn left into Victoria Road. Grouped around Alexandra Square are 7 the Almshouses. This pleasant green is one of several open areas located at regular intervals along Victoria Road.

08

Spaces like these were normally found only in the most affluent areas of Victorian towns. Continue downhill until you reach the crossroads, where the former 8 Hospital building stands at the corner. Use the pedestrian crossing to continue along Victoria Road.

09

You will soon reach two of the finest buildings in the village, the School 9 on the left and the Institute 10 on the right. They are set back from Victoria Road with an open space in front to form Victoria Square. Named in honour after the Queen, Victoria Road linked all the community facilities and important buildings together, creating another distinct zone within the village.

10

Continue along Victoria Road past the row of shops to complete your tour where it began at the railway bridge.

Salts Mill & 1853 Gallery

The Grade II Listed historic mill building was built in 1853 by Sir Titus Salt along with the village to house his workers. The Mill is now a place for art, shopping and dining, with free entry and parking.

Salts Mill is home to the 1853 Gallery, one of the largest collections of David Hockney's art, with a permanent exhibition of over 300 works by Hockney, demonstrating the large range of styles and techniques used by the Bradford-born artist.

Continue through the mill onto the second and third floors where you will find 'The Arrival of Spring' by David Hockney and People & Process where objects and images take visitors through the history of this iconic mill.

Shopping

Saltaire's retail offering is surprisingly diverse for such a small village, including a number of specialist shops and boutiques. Visit the magnificent Salts Mill, housing a variety of excellent shops such as Kath Libbert Jewellery, Early Music Shop and All Terrain Cycles. Wander through the Salts Book and Poster shop and check out The Home, a luxury homewares and furniture shop.

Walk up Victoria Road and discover the delights of Radstudio, a design and art led shop offering modern and functional gifts, Giddy Arts, an independent craft gallery, refill shop and speciality coffee bar, Mr. Whetstone low waste sustainable/refill store cupboard and the Saltaire Vintage Shop, just a few of the wonderful shops in Saltaire.

On Bingley Road further up the hill you'll find a variety of independent shops including Walk in Style selling quality fashion, Evans of Saltaire jewellers, Too Nice To Use and Serendipity for an amazing selection of gifts. If you are feeling creative, call into Salt Pots where you can design and paint your own pottery.

The Aire Valley is home to a fantastic selection of markets that showcase the best local producers. Take a trip to Saltaire Farmers Market, Bingley Artisan Market, Baildon Farmers Market or Shipley Market. So explore the area and enjoy some time to browse the shops and markets there are on offer.

The Great Outdoors

There are many self-guided walks around Saltaire that are accessible for all abilities, including long distance hikes, or you can simply meander through Roberts Park and enjoy the beauty and tranquillity. Saltaire is located just a few miles from the 'Walkers Are Welcome' towns of Baildon and Bingley. When you arrive, you can expect to be greeted warmly by businesses that are familiar with your hiking needs.

Walk to Shipley Glen beyond Roberts Park, take Higher Coach Road to ride the Shipley Glen Tramway or walk uphill through the woods. Follow Prod Lane and turn left past The Glen Public House & Café to access the fabulous landscape.

Explore the Airedale Greenway. Titus Salt deliberately built Saltaire close to the Leeds Liverpool Canal and railway line so that he could distribute his products quickly and cheaply. Today the canal is used for leisure and has an excellent towpath to Bingley and Leeds, and forms National Cycle Network

Route 696. This route provides a fantastic opportunity to explore part of the longest canal in Britain. Take in beautiful countryside, rich industrial history and stunning scenery on a peaceful journey.

Follow the Aire Valley Sculpture Trail, which starts at the bridge on Victoria Road and continues along the River Aire between Baildon Bridge and Saltaire. Admire the 15 sculptures, including a submarine, a dinghy dog and an octopus, the round trip takes around 40 minutes. It's easy to walk making it a great trail for families.

An exciting 90-mile hike known as the Dales High Way takes you through the glorious high country of the Yorkshire Dales. The walk starts at Saltaire and follows bridleways, greenways and old trade routes north to Appleby-in-Westmorland.

Respect. Protect. Enjoy!
